Draft

The draft consists of 18 rounds. The draft method is the reverse method where the order is reversed in the even-numbered rounds. Each team selects one player per round for a total of 18 players. You will have one minute each round to make your selection or pass to the next owner. If you pass, it is for one turn only, not the entire round.

Each franchise must draft

- 3 Quarter Backs (QB)
- 4 Running Backs (RB)
- 6 Wide Receivers (WR)
- 1 extra Running Back or 1 extra Wide Receiver
- 2 Kickers (K)
- 2 Defenses (DEF)

Tight Ends are considered Wide Receivers and Special Teams are considered part of the Defense. You may draft players in any order.

Starting Lineups

Each week teams can submit their starting lineup at their conference's designated website. If you do not submit a lineup, it will remain the same as the previous week. Each player can be started or benched just prior to the start of their particular NFL game. All players are locked however at kickoff of their game. Each team will submit a 9-player lineup each week. The flex position can only be either a RB or WR allowing two possible lineup combinations.

9 Player Starting Lineups

Option One

1 QB, 2 RB, 4 WR, 1 K, 1 DEF

Option Two

1 QB, 3 RB, 3 WR, 1 K, 1 DEF
